THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Our Stabilizer's Plan

Washington, Sept. 18.

IS NOT easy to recall exactly Mr. William H. Davis was e chairman of the War Labor rd (where he was not a shining cess) except that he had been a lot of Government boards, eaus and commissions and was arded as an amiable and amena- man. But, it is easy to recall he became Economic Stabiliza- Director.

—o—

GOT that job because Mr. Fred son, having held it for three ths (nearly a record for him) moved up to be Federal Loan inistrator (which he was for two months), and the easiest g to do was to put Mr. Davis in place, and Mr. George Taylor, he War Labor Board, in Mr. is's place. In that way Mr. sevelt, immersed in war prob- s, avoided the mental strain of ing a new man. Up to a few s ago, Mr. Davis had not partic- ly distinguished himself as Eco- ic Stabilizer. He had done noth- very good but also he had done ing really bad.

ENTLY he drew attention to self by a remarkable declara- in which he "revealed" a ernment program to raise all kers' wages from 40 to 50 per . Mr. Davis thought this could be done in less than a year, but ld be completed within five rs. At the same time it raised es, according to Mr. Davis, the vernment" would prevent any in prices. Asked whether such ncrease in wages would not au- atically raise prices, Mr. Davis that that was "fallacious eco- ic reasoning." It is not so arded by economists, generally. y know all the arguments ut — "technological improve- nts," "greater managerial effi- cy" and "increased produc- ." Nevertheless, those without ernmental, political or labor n bias, strongly insist that to ntain that any such increase in es as proposed by Mr. Davis, be put into effect without rais- prices, is a manifest absurdity. y further insist that exceeding- w, if any, private industrial or mercial concerns, which raised es 50 per cent without raising price of its product, could sur-

OCCUPATION OF JAPAN SETTLING DOWN TO A SMOOTH-WORKING OPERATION WITH THE JAPANESE

Japanese Government Apparently Doing Its Utmost To Conform With the Orders of General Douglass MacArthur—A Member of Jap Cabinet is Dropped

By International News Service

The occupation of Japan was settling down to a smooth-working operation today with the Japanese Government apparently doing its utmost to conform with the orders of Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

The latest manifestations of the Jap Government's co-operation found four more accused Jap war criminals in American hands and a cabinet member dropped.

The cabinet member — Foreign Minister Mamoru Shigemitsu—has a past record of association with two Jap war-mongering cabinets.

Shigemitsu signed for the Jap Imperial Government at the surrender ceremony aboard the USS Missouri in Tokyo Bay.

Shigemitsu was to be replaced by Shigeru Yoshida, one-time ambassador to Great Britain. Yoshida reportedly was arrested three times during the Pacific conflict for airing anti-war views.

Shigemitsu's removal followed a conference over the week-end between MacArthur and premier Prince Naruhiko Higashi-Kuni who was advised that the Jap people must have a greater voice in the government.

MacArthur's utilization of Jap government agencies to carry out his wishes in the occupation program brought about a lowered estimate of the force needed in Japan.

The Supreme Commander estimated that within six months only 200,000 regular army troops will be required to handle any occupation problems which may arise.

This slash in manpower needs will allow thousands of members of the "citizens" army to return home sooner than expected.

MacArthur, though a professional soldier himself, has on past occasions publicly taken note of the ordinary doughboy's desire to return to peacetime living.

MacArthur was directing the occupation from his new headquarters in Tokyo. He chose offices in the modern seven-story Dai-Ighi Mutual Insurance Building fronting a section of the moat surrounding the Imperial Palace.

The four accused war criminals turned over by the Japs within a period of 24 hours were: Lt. Col. Seiichi Ohta, Lt. Honashi Takaughi, Nobusuke Kishi and Rear Adm. Ken Terashima.

All were named on MacArthur's war criminal list. Ohta is accused

Storm Hampers Electric Service in Some Homes

With trouble attributed to falling limbs and branches, the storm during the night and early morning hours is blamed for causing cessation of electric current to scattered homes in lower Bucks County.

A spokesman for the Philadelphia Electric Co. states that the difficulty was not centered in any one section, but included several homes over a scattered area in the lower part of the county. Service was restored after a short time.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

By Samuel B. Pettengill
"The Gentleman from Indiana"

One of the White House mysteries is who writes the messages of a President. These anonymous men of the pen make a noise like a clam, and not even Congress can pry out their secrets.

Mr. Truman's message doesn't sound like the real Truman. It seems to echo the name of Rosenman, the "Sammy the Rose" whom Truman inherited with the pink bric-a-brac. However, the President put his signature to it, and made it his own.

The Communist Daily Worker, P. M., and the other organs of our "Ellis Island Americans" and pocket-book "paytriots" hail the message with glad hosanna and song. To have the "government" guarantee them a long life of short hours and no risk is something that is very easy on the ears.

But to the rest of the country, the message, despite several excellent recommendations, came as a surprise. There seemed to be many straws in the wind that Truman was not going Left.

Then the wind blew whither it listeth and produced a message that whammed the New Deal farther into Left field than Mr. Roosevelt had ever batted it; a message, in fact, that might have been written by the secretariat of the C. I. O.

Mr. Truman has finally plunged into the muddy waters of the Left branch of the Rubicon, with, no doubt, many longing backward glances at his old Missouri loam. But there are many millions still "from Missouri" and the new American Beveridge in the White House will be cross-examined at length on his risk-less Utopia. Despite Chairman Hannegan's endorsement of the message as the opening gun of the '46 and '48 campaigns, it remains to be seen whether Mr. Truman consulted the right fortune teller.

The bad spots of the message remind me of the man who never opened his mouth without subtracting from the sum total of human knowledge. For example, Mr. Truman speaks of the "prosperity which came with the war years." This is the prime fallacy of the post-war New Deal. To go into debt a billion dollars a week and call it "prosperity" shows that the man has spots before the eyes. To mortgage almost to the hilt all the wealth that has been accumulated on this continent since 1492 and feel "prosperous" doing so is the same sort of monkey-doodle the Prodigal Son must have felt as he wasted his substance in a far country.

Mr. Truman next brags of the fine job the government has done in "holding the line against inflation." This is another optical illusion that rising prices constitute inflation, whereas they can only be a result of inflation. Inflation is the issuing of more dollars than goods. It is like printing more tickets than there are seats in the grandstand. The O. P. A. with jail sentences may hold down the price for a time (or appear to) and say, "See, we have prevented inflation. Therefore, hire us some more." But issuing $300 billions of debt, $150 billions of bank deposits, and $30 billions of currency is the real inflation. It all amounts to more dollars outstanding than the total value of these United States.

Yet, because Mr. Truman confuses the appearance for the substance of inflation, he proposes to plunge into huger ventures, here and abroad, calling for more billions

Woodbourne Soldier Dies During Dam Explosion

WOODBOURNE, Sept. 18—S/Sgt. Alfred J. Hammond, aged 25, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred J. Hammond, Sr., of Woodbourne, was killed in Germany on May 13, according to a telegram received by his parents this week. He had previously been reported missing.

Sgt. Hammond, the oldest of eight children, was a member of Company H, 347th Infantry, 87th Division, and had seen much action, including the Battle of the Bulge. The 87th Division is credited with 156 straight days of combat in Germany.

He entered the service April 2, 1942, and was sent overseas October of last year. Prior to being transferred to the infantry he was an instructor in anti-aircraft at Camp Davis, N. C., for two years. He attended parochial schools and was graduated from Langhorne-Middletown High School in 1936. Before entering the Army he was employed at the Cold Spring Bleachery, Yardley.

In a letter to Hammond's parents, Capt. John J. Corcoran stated that Hammond and two companions had been granted permission to visit Muldenberg Dam for the purpose of taking pictures. During the time they were at the dam, an explosion occurred. The explosion was caused by the dumping of ammunition into the dam.

In another letter it was stated that although the body of one of Hammond's companions had been found, a thorough search for Hammond's body proved unsuccessful.

CUT BY SHATTERED GLASS

Mrs. John Mulholland, New Buckley street, reports that she was cut on the face and neck when a pane of glass in the railway coach in which she was riding was shattered in some manner on Thursday last. Mrs. Mulholland was en route from Tacony to her home here, when between Tacony and Holmesburg she states the window pane was suddenly crashed to bits, the particles of glass cutting her. She has not learned yet whether an object from outside the train is responsible for the damage or not. The conductor, with aid of railway officials, arranged for her transportation to Harriman Hospital upon arrival at Bristol station, she says, treatment being given there and she then returning to her home.

"SECURITY" BECOMES A POLITICAL SNARL

G. Mason Owlett Says the Word Is Being Used to Bewitch the People

ADDRESSES ROTARY

HERSHEY, Sept. 18—G. Mason Owlett, president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association and Republican National Committeeman for Pennsylvania, said here today that the word "security" had become a political snare used by the New Deal to bewitch the American people into believing "it is possible to gain freedom from want by depending entirely on government instead of the time-honored principles of opportunity, work and thrift."

Mr. Owlett, addressing a meeting of the Hershey Rotary Club, said:

"Security is a creation of man's own enterprise. It is not a commodity to be bartered by the politically powerful. Real and permanent security springs from man's opportunity to do things; opportunity to work at a job of one's own choosing; opportunity to lay aside something for a rainy day.

"Security based on political paternalism or dependence upon government for the necessities of life is camouflaged serfdom. It is the direct road to national socialism under which Big Government would wield the iron fist of authority over banks, railroads, steel mills, coal mines, farms and factories and all forms of American enterprise.

"Security which ties a man and his family to government's apron strings and forces him to sacrifice

A.A.F. HEADQUARTERS

Writing from A. A. F. Headquarters in China, Cpl. Dorothy L. Ritter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ritter, 566 Swain street, tells of her first real Chinese dinner. The letter follows:

"Sept. 5, 1945.

"Dear Folks:

"Well, at long last, I have finally reached China. We arrived here on the 4th of August. We traveled by plane, flew over 'the Hump' at 19,000 feet, and for several hours it was necessary for us to use oxygen masks, which was a new experience for all of us. China is really beautiful from the air. It all looks so very green. When we landed, we loaded into G. I. trucks, on which we spent the next two hours on the bumpiest, roughest ride I have ever had, over the famous Stilwell Road.

"Our quarters here are really fine, we have rooms with two girls each. We have Chinese girls to do our work for us here. They are called Ahmahs here, whereas in India they were called Ayaks.

Discord Grows In UAW-CIO Ranks

Detroit — Growing discord in UAW-CIO ranks and spread of the motor fuel strike to six states today added to Detroit's labor-management headaches.

Michigan's largest refinery, Socony-Vacuum Co., at Trenton, was affected by a walkout of 300 Monday. The Sixth District Council of the CIO International Oil Workers Union, with which the employes are affiliated, immediately issued strike mobilization orders throughout Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, Illinois, Wisconsin, and Kentucky, where the strikes were reported spreading.

Gasoline and oil dealers were expected to experience shortages today, but officials of one union local said refinery workers would provide gasoline and motor fuel for heating to all essential users.

A revolt was brewing within the troubled UAW-CIO as presidents of locals said they would not recognize international union officers if they perpetuate themselves in office after the first of the year without a convention.

Matthew Hammond, chairman of the president's committee, announced that local heads would meet Thursday to discuss the need for a convention, the strike situation and wages.

THEY FEAR THE TRUTH

By insisting on clear control of the Pearl Harbor Investigating Committee, the Democrats in Congress have shown that they did not mean it when they said they were eager for a full inquiry into the defeat which will forever be a blot on America's military record. The committee will be composed of six Democrats and four Republicans, thus giving the New Deal party the right to call or exclude witnesses at its pleasure, to steer the testimony into channels that suit its purposes and, of course, to dictate the conclusions that finally are reached.

And Representative Sabath, chairman of the House Rules Committee, before a single bit of testimony had been heard, hopes that the responsibility will be put where it belongs and that "our late great President, our former Secretary of State and our great military leader, General Marshall," will not be charged with neglect. This is serving notice that Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Hull and General Marshall must be relieved of all blame for the disaster. What the nation will have now is a political survey by a political party.

HARMFUL AGITATION

Unless administration leaders on Capitol Hill soon display at least a modicum of aptitude for putting first things first, the record of the "reconversion" Congress will turn out to be worse than disappointing. As things are going now, the session is doing more to hinder a speedy transition than aid it.

The latest development in Washington is a drive among the New Dealers for an immediate minimum wage increase from the present standard of 40 cents an hour to 65 cents an hour. It is reported that Florida's irrepressible Senator Pepper planned to introduce such an amendment to the Fair Labor Standards Act about October 1 but that other supporters of this proposal are unwilling to wait that long.

It is argued that this boost is part of the general program designed to achieve full employment and should be pressed immediately. The fact is, of course, that proponents of the amendment have taken courage from President Truman's statement that the 40-cents-an-hour "minimum" is "obsolete." Their idea is to strike while the iron is hot.

Yet it should be apparent to everyone that this kind of talk will only hamper reconversion. Employers must be given a chance to plan ahead—and they are not likely to take any avoidable long-term risks when there is a strong likelihood that wage rates will rise even while the government insists on keeping prices down. For all wage rates would tend to climb if a new and higher minimum should be set.

Agitation for higher pay and shorter hours just now cannot hasten reconversion. It is inevitable that in time workers will earn more with less labor—that has been the trend and the end of technological progress has not been reached—but this is not the time to confront management with unnecessary difficulties.

The Armistice banquet was set for Saturday evening, November 3rd, with Mrs. Bonnell as chairman.

In addressing the membership briefly, Mrs. Yealy reminded of the conference to be held at Harrisburg on October 12th, when state officers of the Auxiliary will be installed. She congratulated the local unit on membership, stating it had the largest increase in new members for the year of any unit in Montgomery-Bucks Council.

Mrs. Yealy made a plea for continued aid to servicemen, especially those who are hospitalized. "For them the war will never be over," she stated as she urged continued assistance in a variety of ways. "And when the boys come home see that they derive all the benefits due them. Be patient and tolerant with the returning serviceman. Don't pity him if he is incapacitated. He doesn't want your pity. And above all don't pester them with questions. Be sympathetic in an understanding way."

The retiring president, Mrs. Friedrich, informed that on November 1st Mrs. Harrison Smith will address Langhorne Sorosis on the subject of "Post-War Planning for the Americas." The Auxiliary members and the public in general are invited to hear Mrs. Smith on that date at three p. m. in the Langhorne library.

Mrs. Friedrich and Mrs. Bonnell were named delegates to the presidents' and secretaries' conference at Harrisburg on October 12th. Accepted as new members were Mrs. John Christine and Mrs. Charles Kelch.

Refreshments of ice cream, home-made cake and cookies, and coffee, were served by Mrs. Ransom and Mrs. Tracy.

"Security" Becomes A Political Snarl

his independence and dignity for a handout is a disease of national morality not unlike that which bowed the backs of the German people and led them to destruction under Hitler's leadership.

"Proponents of national socialism and government bureaucracy use the 'come on' bait of 'security for all' to whitewash the sinister goals of totalitarianism. There can be no real security under an absolute government which tells a man what he can or can't do.

"A man in prison has security; a bird in a cage has security; but that is not good enough for the American people. They don't want that kind of security.

"Since time immemorial the right to work has been man's heritage. Nations have risen on the sinews of the working man. Any country which gives a bonus for loafing is making a serious and perhaps an irreparable error.

"From an actual standpoint, it would be impossible to create a financial reservoir big enough to carry out the New Deal concept of security without lowering wages and increasing the tax burden on private enterprise. It takes no guesswork to realize that under such a setup we would be shaking hands with national bankruptcy.

"Production—not unemployment pensions—lies at the heart of the more abundant life. It is true that social security is a public necessity in our kind of economy but it was never intended to encourage professional idleness with government taking from the 'do-ers' to give to the 'do-nots.'

"All of us believe that this country needs a strong, solvent social security system for eligible individuals—one that is fairly administered—one that substitutes an orderly, systematic setup for hit or miss private charity, local poor relief and Federal boondoggling.

"We will get far more money for social security if the productive capacity of America is kept fluid and alive.

"At best social security constitutes only half rations. If the so-called common man is to truly enjoy the bounty of this great nation he must be a living, working part of our economic machinery.

"Any system which corrupts the human desire to produce is the destroyer of incentive and progress and bona fide security.

'No man who refuses work which he is qualified to do has any rightful claim or unemployment insurance. When he makes such a claim, he defrauds fellow workers since the unemployment insurance fund comes indirectly out of everybody's wages."

Cpl. Dorothy Ritter Writes from China

These people are very different from the Indians and seem much healthier and more independent. The Chinese greet you with 'Ding Ho' and at the same time raise their thumb the way we do when we say 'thumbs up.' Right now, all eating places in town (Chungking) are out of bounds for military personnel, because of a cholera epidemic. We have our own dining room here and the food is good. We have a 10 minutes walk to work and the offices are really beautiful.

"I do want to tell you of my first real Chinese dinner! It was not at all like the Chinese food served in the States. I did quite well with the chopsticks. We had a lot of fun laughing at each other's errors in manipulating them.

"In order to get to the place (which was the American Embassy) we had to first cross the Yangtze River on a ferry, and then came the fun. We were carried in bamboo sedan chairs upon the shoulders of two coolies up what seemed an unending flight of very rough and treacherous stone steps, through the 'gosh-awfulest' native Chinese village I have ever seen. Foul odors prevailed. The rats ran east and west, north and south. The coolies didn't seem to mind them nor did they seem to mind the big pigs we had to detour around at frequent intervals. I was thankful for my seat high above all this animal life. I think I would have had heart failure if that chair had broken or if the coolies had even decided to set me down in the middle of it all. Neither of those things happened, however, so I'm still intact!

"The Embassy itself is really beautiful. The dinner was given for us by men assigned to the military attache, and they live in the Embassy. They have a Chinese cook and it was he who prepared our meal. We each had a bowl of rice placed before us; on this rice we preceded to pile all the things, or rather I should say foods, that were in the center of the table. There was chicken liver, meat balls, sweet and sour pork, water chestnuts and bamboo sprouts. All these things have gravies with them. Table manners as we know them were entirely forgotten by necessity. When in China, do as the Chinese do. So we held the bowl close up to our mouths and sort of scooped the food in. One of the boys made a remark that we were not doing it right because we didn't have the table cloth nearly as dirty as it should be! After the meal we spent our time dancing on the large airy veranda.

"Then came the return trip down to the ferry landing. We climbed into our chairs again (bamboo sedan) and were carried down through the village. It was dark this time and we could only see the outlines of the animal life. But dark or not, you could still smell everything. The people just stared at us all the time, we are so different than they. Thank Goodness!

"In China also everybody was going wild here when the news came on V-J day. The Chinese went wild and every G. I. they would see, they would practically paw him to pieces. They just crowded around in mobs. They also supplied fire crackers, the first I had heard or seen for a long time. When we feel the way we do after four years, you can well imagine how they feel after 10 years. We have been jokingly saying that it took the WACs to end the war. We arrived in China five days before the war was over.

"Love,

"DOROTHY."

Soviet Aspirations In the Limelight

London—Soviet aspirations in the Mediterranean came into the limelight at the Council of Foreign Ministers today and a public clarification of Russia's attitude was awaited anxiously.

Deliberations of the Big Five which got underway today under the chairmanship of Chinese Foreign Minister Wang Shi-Chieh seemingly were affected by reports concerning the Russian stand on the Italian colonial question.

When the Council meetings began it was agreed that communiques would be issued from time to time but that no additional information would be given out.

Some delegations now are concerned over a series of leakages from conference quarters purporting to give the views of various delegations, particularly the Russian group.

There was osme expectation in London that the full picture of Russia's stand might be explained later in the day.

Trusteeship For Italian Colonies

London—Soviet Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov told a news conference today that the San Francisco conference had decided upon a trusteeship for Italian colonies.

Food Riots Threaten Paris

Paris—Food riots threatened to spread throughout France today following the looting of shops in Toulouse and Paris by hungry mobs whose actions were unanimously supported by the Paris press.

Disorder increased despite a promise by Interior Minister Rene Plevin last night that the food supply would improve during the winter. Paris newspapers blamed the present shortages on the Food Ministry.

Police patrolled the steets of Toulouse and Paris today, while in Lyon self-appointed vigilantes composed of former inmates of German concentration camps blockaded food shops with demands for lower prices.

tack other little girls in Montgomery county and had threatened former employers with axes and pitchforks.

S. Reed Conrey, Jr., of Point Pleasant, pleaded guilty before Judge Keller to a charge of drunken driving in Doylestown at 2 a. m. on May 25, when arrested by Patrolman Clarence Irwin, of Doylestown. The defendant testified that he had 4 or 5 drinks at a State street hotel in Doylestown.

Judge Keller fined Conrey $150 and costs. Several character witnesses appeared in behalf of Conrey, an aeronautical engineer.

J. Arnold Rummel, 6510 Ogontz avenue, Phila., pleaded guilty before Judge Keller, to a charge of drunken driving and resisting arrest that was made by Trooper Thomas Marks, of the Doylestown sub-station of State Police.

Trooper Marks testified that Rummel kicked him in the face when he went to arrest him in his automobile at Ivyland, in front of the home of Julius Heinicke, who called police.

Heinicke testified that he was awakened early in the morning and saw the defendant's car was being operated on railroad tracks opposite his home. Later the defendant drove his car through Heinicke's back yard, over shrubbery and other things. That's when Heinicke got mad and called the State police.

Rummel testified he doesn't remember anything after leaving the Moose Club in Willow Grove, where he imbibed too freely. He did not remember striking at the defendant or how he got to Ivyland.

The defendant said he drank whiskey and beer both. He operates a taproom in Philadelphia.

Character witnesses were called in behalf of Rummel as to his reputation for sobriety.

A fine of $200 and costs was imposed on Rummel. Sentence was suspended on the resisting arrest charge.

Almighty and everlasting God, whose Son came into the world to destroy the power of darkness and make us the children of light, illumine our minds, we beseech thee with the full and abiding knowledge of Christ and his gospel. Bless everywhere those who are striving for a Christian education amid various hindrances and handicaps; raise up friends to prosper and encourage their endeavours. Pour out thy Spirit from on high, and sanctify all minds and hearts for thine acceptable service here and thy blessed Kingdom hereafter. The Great Game of Politics

Government program to raise wages 50 per cent while preventing any increase in prices would amount to an assassination of private business. Or, if the wages are raised and prices go up, then the cost of livivng is increased, no one is any better off—and the inflation danger is greatly enhanced. It is worth noting that a few days after Mr. Davis's "revelation" the CIO Steel Workers Union asked for a $2-a-day increase for 800,000 men and its solemn president, Mr. Murray, said he did not think this would mean an increase in price.

—o—

BEYOND question the steel workers' demand will be followed by demands from other unions and by increased pressure from congressional advocates of a 65-cent-an-hour minimum wage rate, all of whom will echo Mr. Davis's lovely idea that wages can be raised without raising prices, increasing the cost of living or promoting inflation. One expects this sort of cockeyed economics from the press agents of the CIO and the Communist dominated American Labor party. One hardly expects them from a man holding the post of Economic Stabilizer. If this is the Economic Stabilizer's view of the way to stabilize our economy and if he is correct about this being the Government's program, this country is going to need an awful lot of luck to pull through.

—o—

NATURALLY, there is some question of how far Mr. Davis is authorized to speak for the Government: of whether any such important program as this would be announced by any one other than the President; or whether Mr. Truman subscribes to the extraordinary economic theory that a 50 per cent. rise in wages does not involve a rise in prices; of whether this sort of smash at business is his idea of the way to encourage private enterprise to create more jobs. There is also the question of whether Congress, which certainly is one branch of the Government, has been consulted about this program. Until there is more light on these points, perhaps, Mr. Davis's program need not be taken too seriously—though it does rather fit in with the so-called "Full Employment" bill.

—o—

HOWEVER, one responsible authority asserts that Mr. Davis "speaks by the book;" that this really is a government program and that Mr. Truman is for it. Without congressional action, government cannot compel private business to accept this program, but with government encouragement it could be enforced by the unions. Perhaps, that is the idea and it will certainly be cheered by the enemies of private enterprise. Every sensible man is for full employment and higher wages. But whether they belong to a union or not, sensible men do not want what are sure to be temporary benefits if the price involves sacrifice of the American economic system. Despite the lip service which advocates of htese steps now give to private enterprise, that is precisely what is involved.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

of deficits and debts. At the same time, he speaks of "our obligations to 85,000,000 bond holders." Indeed, so. Yet his whole message was inflationary and so regarded by the stock and commodity markets. In short, wages and prices are to go up, and the real value of government bonds are to go down. The Wall Street Journal has expressed the opinion that except for various artificial devices, the bonds of probably every State in the Union would today sell higher than the bonds of the United States.

It is about time for these 85,000,000 bond holders to realize that not one dime of this debt can be truly paid until we again have a balanced budget.

The straight road to the horrors of Europe is the ceaseless printing of bonds and the sly robbery, by politicians, of the value of money. These are the methods Hitler and Lenin used until the people became their helpless pawns.

Because of the "polio" ban in Trenton, no children under sixteen years of age will be admitted to the Bristol High-Trenton High football game under the lights at Dunn Field, Trenton, Friday night.

WHAT HAS A CONVEYOR BELT TO DO WITH YOUR Morning toast?

MAYBE more than you think. For the electricity that serves you in so many helpful ways is the product of many things . . . conveyor belts among them.

So when a main belt used for conveying coal needed repair, we had to decide whether we could wait eleven months for a new one or find a substitute for the natural rubber coating.

That's just what P.E. engineers did. They found not only a new coating, better than natural rubber, but a new binder to hold the coating in place. The result: a belt as good as new in short order. By using 550 pounds of this coating, 24,000 pounds of conveyor belting was saved, its life prolonged indefinitely!

This is just one more example of P.E.'s constant research and experiments aimed at assuring dependable and economical electric service.

Other P.E. "Firsts"—

- A protective coating with a newly developed primer has ended the rapid erosion and corrosion of pumping equipment.
- There's extra safety for men working on high-tension lines in a new coating for insulator hoods and cable hose.
